MINNEAPOLIS MINN May 2 -At 7 clock this evening the city was shaken as by an earthquake by a terrific explosion, which was promptly traced to the groups of great flouring mills in what is known as the "Platform," just above St. Anthony Falls, where the entire flouring district of the city is concentrated. The explosion came from the great Washburne mill, from which a column was seen to shoot up several hundred feet, followed by a crash which crushed the immense structure like an egg shell. Secondary explosions instantly destroyed the Thomp-son & Hoyt and the Humbolt mills, and the flames immediately burst out, com-municating to the Galaxy mills, those of Pettit, Robinson & Co., Cahill, Ankery & Co., L. Day & Sons, Day & Rollins, Buell, Newton & Co., Gaston, Hayward & Co., the Washburne A and B mills, and the lesser structures down to the bank of the river, nearly to the Minneapolis and St. Louis railroad shops. The destruction from the shock of the explosion extended much further, glass being wrecked for several squares and buildings shaken throughout the city. About 8:30 the fire was raging within these limits, and the firemen working valiantly to subdue the flames. The immediate theory of the explosion is that it took place in the gas generated in the patent middlings purifier process. The loss of life is undoubtedly great, but full details are lacking in the confusion that surrounds the scene. The first rumors made the dead from 70 to 80, but this is not borne out by inquiry. The explosion took place at the hour of changing the day for the night hands. The list of killed and injured so far as ascertained is as follows:

WABASH COLLEGE,

The Annual Baldwin Contest-Names of Competitors and Award of Prizes. [Special correspondence of the Indianapolis News.

An event second only in importan commencement week in college life is the Baldwin prize contest occurred at Crawfords ville last evening. It is an occasion which incites to honorable emulation for excellence in composition, and as such has been productive of good re sults. The Baldwin prize was instituted by Judge D. P. Baldwin, of Logansport, in 1873, Mr. C. D. Whitehead, of your city, being the first successful competitor. The college faculty announce subjects upor which members of the senior class desiring to compete write an oration, and from the list submitted six are chosen for delivery upon this occasion. awarding of prizes ceach competitor reeeives an illustrated volume of Shakespeare's complete works bound in calf leather—a fit forerunner of their leather—a fit forerunner of anticipated sheepskins—and him the representative of Olympian games, whose laurels were an olive branch, is given an additional consideration of forty dollars. Center church, in which the exercises were held, was comfortably filled by an interested and intelligent audience, the abominable weather which prevailed failing to keep them at home. The contestants put in a prompt appearance at the hour announced for the contest, each hopeful of success, yet conscious that victory is co-ordinate with defeat.

Dr. Tuttle presided, and after the usual Dr. Tuttle presided, and after the usual preliminaries orations were delivered on "Bismarck and European politics," by E. P. Johnson, Crawfordsville, W. G. McDonald, Hannibal, Missouri, and J. H. Woods, Greenwood; "The Russ and the Turk" by Sam B. Hunt, Mansfield. Illinois; and Howard Billman, West Carlisle, Ohio; "Alexander Hamilton," by John S. Watson, Crawfordsville. The efforts of these gentlemen were fully up to the average college to the average co-roduction and were all well received. production and were all well received. At the conclusion of the speeches the judges, Prof. Wm. G. Ballantine, Bloomington; Wm. H. H. Miller, Indianapolis, and R. B. F. Pierce, Crawfordsville, retired to compare their markings, and after a brief period of suspense the announcement was made that Mr. Howard Billman had been awarded the $40 had been awarded the $40 prize, his standing being 7.79. The merit of the other performers ranked as follows: In the opinion of the judges, Thompson 7.52, Woods 7.44, Hunt 7.43, Watson 7.40, McDannold 7.21. The decision gave very general satisfaction and was received with great demonstration. In the absence of Judge Baldwin the prizes were formalof Judge Baldwin the prizes were formally presented in his name by Dr. Tuttle, who took occasion to compliment the young gentlemen upon their admirable success. The speeches were interspersed with good music, and the participants were the recipients of the usual compliment of boquets. The fact that the speakers were limited to three topics upon which to write accounts, in the similarity of the subjects presented last evening. Dr. Bartlett had been selected to act as one of the judges, but was that the first estimates of the loss of life were exaggerated. The number of the dead is now placed at 14. Many thrilling incidents and narrow escapes occurred. One man, Daniel Day, was blown the whole length of Pettit & Robinson's mill and through a window, and escaped. One poor fellow, who could not be recognized, had escaped alive from the explosion, and was observed crawling through the darting, hungry flames towards the track of the Minneapolis and St. Louis road, directly in the rear of the Washburne mill. He managed to reach the rail, and there evidently became exhausted, and fell back into the raging hell behind, where his agonies instantly ended. It now appears that the most of the day force had gone home, and only the smaller night force remained. The loss to property is enormous, but the confusion is too great for an intelligent estimate at present. A rough calculation places it at $1,500,000, of which $1,000,000 will fall upon the milling interests. The loss throughout the city by the breaking of glass, etc., is $10,000. Five mills and a planing mill were destroyed besides beside adjoining property, including 87 out of the 197 runs of stone in the city. The five flouring mills which were involved in the disaster form a group which comprises the heaviest concerns in the Chief among them were the two Washburne mills, the property of ex-Gove. nor C. C. Washburne, of Wisconsin, of which the one in which the explosion occurred was the largest flouring mill in the country, and the largest but one in the world. It was built in 1870, included forty-one run of stone, and was worth $200,000. It is now a smoking mass of ruins, with its companions on the "Plat-form." The destruction is complete, so far as the limits above named, and is serious within much wider bounds. The flames are still raging in the ruins, but are under control and no further extension is feared. It is now hoped that the dead will be con fined to the fourteen mentioned as in the St. Paul, Minn., May 2.—The shock of the explosion of the Washburn mill, at Minneapolis, was plainly felt here, and the flames were seen, creating intense ex citement. In various parts of the city pieces of the charred roof-paper, small timbers and cinders were picked up, hurl-ed in the air by the explosion, and brought nere, nine miles distant, by the wind. The news was received here by telegraph im-mediately, and fire engines were made ready to send, but an inability to secure transportation prevented their arrival in time to be of use. There were no trains to Minneapolis after the news was received to Minneapolis after the news was received but hundreds went up by the road, the livery stables being emptied in an hour. The Pioneer Press publishes the follow-ing as the total insurance stated by the companies represented in the several mills destroyed: Humboldt, Ball, Newton & Co., $44,500; Pettit & Robinson, $98,000; Galaxy, W. Ankeny, $75,000; Washburn, mill A. $217,000. mill A. $217,000.

THE EASTERN WAR.

The Feeling in Turkey Decidedly Anti-

Russian.

London, May 3.—Though Russia is believed to have secured Austrian neutrality, her military situation in Turkey is now regarded as exceedingly critical. The attitude of the Turkish soldiery is reported more favorable than ever for an alliance with English transfer. for an alliance with English troops. A month ago Russian influence seemed on the point of carrying everything before it but now the porte seems more intractible than ever and the Turkish army isso strong that the threats of the Russians have lit tle effect. The Turks have intrenched positions and are scarcely inferior in num-ber to what the Muscovites can mass, so that not only can there be no question of that not only can there be no question of surprise, but even the most serious attack might be resented sufficiently long enough at any rate until help could come from elsewhere. It is not therefore considered likely that they will accede to the evacuation of Varna, Shumla and Batoum, when the state of the Business away from even to get the Russians away from the neighborhood of Constantinople General Todleben therfore will have to display considerable diplomatic talent in the attempt to overcome all difficulties while the conciliatory disposition in St. Petersburg must be strong not to be worn out by the temporizing policy which the Turks, feeling the strength of their position will doubtless use with their well known consummate skill. Meanwhile, though direct negotiations with the Turks for the with-drawal of the Russians have begun, accounts from Adrianople state that troops are still moving in the direction of Tchaldja and the capital, while west-ward against the insurgents but few battalion and squadrons of Cossacks have been dispatch

Attempt to Punish Wagner-His Reported

Escape.
[Special to The Indianapolis News.]
SHEEBYVILLE, May 3.—The bitter feeling in the Wagner case broke out with renewed vigor this morning. A party of young men armed with shot-guns and revolvers, and carrying a rope, proceeded to Wagner's residence on Washington street, at 10 o'clock, and were followed by an immense crowd which filled the sidewalks on both sides of the street for the distance of a

Only through the utmost exertions of the efficient city marshal, Jeff. Barger, and his assistant, Bichard Throlls, was the mob prevented from dealing out summary punishment. The intentions of the mob were not to take Wagner's life, but to escort him to the public square, tie him. and let every one who felt so disposed, give him a cut with a rawhide such as he himself had used to beat his daughter; and then duck him in Blue river. The young men who have taken the lead in this matter are not in the least timid, for the reason they have the moral support of the best citizens-provided, however, that they administer only severe bodily punishment, and not endanger Wagner's life. At eleven clock your correspondent was reliably informed that Wagner, through the assistance of the city officers. had made his escape. From the feeling openly manifested in the matter when 48 hours have passed, in which the heated passions have thoroughly cooled, it is certainly not safe for him to to stay here, and it would be almost suicidal for him to attempt to continue in

What makes the affair worse for Wagner is the fact, that there was no excitement whatever-no loud talking, no drunkenness, but a fixed determination on the part of every one in the crowd that he will have to change his residence, and that without unnecessary delay.

LATER.

SHELBYVILLE, Ind., May 3 .- The ruse that Wagner had fled excited a crowd. At 12:10 Mayor McGuire commanded the crowd to disperse, with no effect whatever. At 12:15 Sheriff McCorkle selected a posse of 40 men, who stood in line in Wagner's yard. At 12:20 Wagner, frightened almost to insanity and pale as a sheet, marched to the depot, surrounded by the posse and followed by 500 persons. At 12:30 he boarded the east bound trainamid the jeers, groans and hisses of the crowd. Mrs. Wagner, though earnestly asked by the officers, refused to leave with

They are supposed to number 300 men under the direction of Colonel Muroz, of Escobedo's staff. It is the program for a party to cross near Rio Grands city and take Camargo, but it is not be-lieved that they will be able to do so. The garrisons of Almier and Matamoras are expected to pronounce against Diaz.

Mysterious explosions occur in the most unexpected places. Boilers, nitroglycerine factories and illuminating gas explode frequently and are understood, but lately there have been some inexplicable ones. The candy factory in New York last December is followed by the great flour mill in Minneapolis, the first theory of which is that it was caused by gas arising from middlings. One theory of the New York explosion was that it was caused by a gas evolved from starch, and it may be that a deadly foe lurks in cereals.

THE New York Herald says "Our petty and preposterous domestic politics, which keep the country in agitation over 'paltry party squabbles, can not arrest the march of the country to greatness." We are free to maintain the same belief but we do think the aforesaid politics are a great stumbling block, and if we had to deal with some foreign powers of higher men tal calibre than Mexico, the people would find out that the ranting noodles they send to congress would be of more value in an auction room or at a horse fair, than administering affairs of state.

The greenbackers in Indiana are likely to make a split in the republican convention.—[New York Herald.

The metropolitan press does not discuss Indiana affairs much more intelligently than the English press does American affairs. The greenbackers are not at all likely to make a split in the republican convention. Indiana republicans, through the bad advice of their leader, burnt their fingers with $10,000 or more of greenbacks in the campaign of 1876, and lost the state by it. They will have nothing to do with heresics of any kind this year. Hayes, hard money and home rule is more likely to be their declaration.

THE Madison Courier on Wednesday began its thirtieth year, and seems just to be blooming into the full vigor of life. The Courier i a growing journal; each year finds it much improved as a newspaper. It is carefully and ably managed, and is particularly marked by strong common sense and thoughtful consideration of the great questions that agitate the country. The Courier is never found going off half-cocked. On the financial questions it has kept its head through all the confusion raised about party papers, and has been an efficient advocate of national good faith and henesty. It is a fair exponent of the solidity and intelligence of Madison, and deserves the most generous support.

THE Journal gets lachrymose over the "really destitute circumstances and actual personal want" of General John C. Fremont. A New York paper says that is not the state of the case. The general and his family are in straightened circumstances, but they are far from actual want. A dozen years ago he was a millionaire, so well intrenched in wealth it would seem that the commonest prudece would keep him from want the rest of life. He has been unfortunate, and so have thousands of others. Per se we do not look upon this case as calling for the governmental relief by a pension which the Journal advocates, any more than the thousands of other similar unfortunates. The government is not a charitable institution to aid distress, individual or collective. It doesn't owe anybody a living. It can and does pay for services by pensions, and can grant Gen. Fremont one if it finds good and sufficient reasons, but poverty is not one of them.

THERE is some virility left yet in the officeholders' order, by the declaration that the state associations shall not be reorganized for campaign work. The clerks at Washington mostly contribute labor, and being backed by the president's declaration that they shall not compelled by the pressure organization it will be difficult for them to escape. There are too many of them to be singled out for individual punishment. Thesituation plainly is that no organized effort shall be made by office-holders, nor shall any them individually take part managing conventions, but after the nominations are made office holders have individual rights as citizens the free of exercise of which can not be restrained. This is the most that can truthfully and logically be made of the office holder's order. Practically this construction of it will be abused in many instances, we have no doubt. But it is a step in the right direction of civil service reform, and perhaps as a first step will be on the whole more productive of good than a more stringent measure. But we should like to see it followed by other orders in this connection that will be as great a reaction against all the ramifications of the iniquitous system, as Luther's reformation against Catholicism was. Reformations generally go to extremes, but that gives an opportunity of a return to rational middle ground which a half-halting movement would not.

Choose Between Them. The election next Tuesday is a very important one for the citizens of Indianapolis. Taxes never pressed harder and times never demanded more economy and prudence in city government than now. With values at "hard pan," and the prospect of moderate gains and economical living for some years to come at least, people can not afford to pay heavy taxes. They are burdened enough as it is, and need relief, not fresh loads. Besides this, if the city is to be prospered, if it is to attract business and population, it must be well governed and cheaply governed. Expenses must be kept down to the lowest limit. We want to develop our manufactures. The items of taxation and city expenditure will be closely scanned by everybody who is thinking of investing his capital or establishing a business here. Low taxes will be a powerful inducement to draw population, and if the city is to maintain itself and increase it must have low taxes. Its advantages are as great and as many as they ever were. It has stood the pressure as well as any place of corresponding or greater size, and better than many. With a good government carefully managed at reasonable cost, there is no reason why its progress should not be rapid, substantial and permanent. It depends on the people to give it this government, and if they look to their own interests they will need no urging.

Unfortunately perhaps, but unavoidably, the contest for the control of the city govmust be made between two parties. Each has been tried; each has administered the government for a time, and a fair contrast can be made between them. "By their fruits ye shall know them" is as applicable to parties as it is to men. In common with most other cities Indianapolis has suffered from the extravagance and corruption that has been a feature of the inflation era. The News has waged a constant war against this, and when one party seemed given over to misrule, it advocated trying the other which stood ready, with loud promises that it would reform all abuses. In May, 1874, the people took the government away from the republicans and gave it to the democrats. They held it two years, and not having kept a single promise it was taken from them and turned over to the republicans again under renewed pledges. Two years of republican supremacy and responsibility have followed and the candidates of both parties are before the people for judgment. The only proper question for the voter to decide is, which party has given the city the best government and which is therefore entitled to a vote expressive of confidence at this time. This question is to be determined, not by a comparison of the resolutions of their conventions, nor by their views on national issues, but upon their actual performances right here. The records show the following facts: The democratic council which came into power in May, 1874, inherited from its predecessor a total indebtedness of $1,294,500 and a cash balance of $259,670.58, making the net indebtedness $1,034,829.42. Retaining for the first year its predecessor's rate of taxation for the previous year $1.10 on the $100, raising the appraisement from $61,244,311.00 to $67,309,193.00, it conducted itself with such extravagance that at the end of its first year the debt had grown to $1,455-500.00, the cash balance had been reduced to $11,681.58, leaving a net indebtedness of $1.443,818.42 an increase during the year of $408,989.00, in addition to the expenditure of the large revenue derived from the Increased appraisement. With an increased revenue, it not only failed to keep within its means, but increased the debt as above stated without having had any extraordinary liabilities of consequence to meet. It was a year of unprecedented extravagance and increase of debt, without any increase of assets. The second year of democratic ascendency shows these results. They increased a cash balance of $40,431,57 and an indebtedness of $1,606,165,60, having increased the net debt during the year, $121,915.61. In brief, during their two years of power, they expended the handsome cash balance left them of $259,670,-58, increased the basis of taxation $3,000,-000, raised the rate to the highest point ever reached in the history of the city, inreased the indebtedness of the city $530, 904.61 and gave the city nothing of consequence in the way of improvements or property of any kind to show for it, while their government was the worst the city has ever known.

The republicans, after two years of control present results that contrast very favorably with this. They succeeded to a cash balance of $40,431.57, and an indebtedness of $1,606,165.60. The first year they reduced the appraisement to $60,456,-200, and the rate to $1.40 on the $100; they reduced expenses (see table below) and not only lived within their means, but at the end of their first year were able to show a reduction of the debt amounting to $229,980.66! The second year of the republicans not being completed at this date, the results for only the first eleven months can now be presented. The appraisement was further reduced to $55,367,245.00, and the rate to $1.12 on the $100. On the 15th of April, the cash balance in the treasury was $613,413.98. The indebtedness of the city at that date, less the cash balance, was $1,101,086.02. This is substantially the balance sheet that the city treasurer will be able to present to the new council at the close of the second year of republican control, except that the payment to be made thereafter of this year's sum due the school fund will reduce the treasurer's cash balance to $513,038.44, and make the city indebtedness less their cash balance, $1,201,124,46. Thus it is shown that with a reduced appraisement and a reduced rate of taxation the city has not only lived within its income during the current fiscal year, but its indebtedness will at the close of the year have been reduced by the further amount of $134,628.91. In this statement of results of republican management, we have not included the special issue of city bonds, January 1, 1877, to the amount of $500,000 to the Belt railroad, as the city is supposed to have the equivalent therefor in a like amount of the bonds of that corporation. Here is the contrast: DEMOCRATIC RULE. REPUBLICAN RULE.

The point made by the Sentinel that the retrenchment here exhibited was due to a resolution by the democratic county convention in 1876, is made ludicrous by the count for nothing by the side of acts. The further point of the Sentinel, that the republican reduction of taxation was made compulsory by the act of the legislature limiting municipal taxation to $1.12 per $100, is a very weak point indeed, for the law did not go into effect until May 1, 1877, and is met by the fact that for the previous year the republicans had reduced the appraisement nearly $9,000,000, the rate from $1.50 to $1.40 per hundred, and the city debt $229,980.66. During the current year, under the reduced rate to which it was limited by the legislature, the council made a still larger reduction of expenses and accomplished a reduction of the city debt amounting to $134,628.91. Further evidence that a republican council went further in the direction of retrenchment than it was forced to go by the legislature, is found in the fact that while the law permitted the city to fund its floating debt, the council during the past year applied a part of its revenue to the extinguishment of a floating debt of $296, 301,37, when it might have increased the bonded debt that amount and used the amount so applied for current expenses.

The republicans as the foregoing denonstration shows, have so decidedly the advantage of the democrats in respect to the record made by each in the management of the city's affairs, that they are fairly entitled to a renewed lease of power. The issue presented is a strictly business question and should be treated as such by voters, irrespective of political Serenity of the President. [Washington special to the Cincinnati Gazette.] The president's friends declare that his civil service policy is not abandoned, and that the civil service order will be regularly enforced. They say that while office-holders may be permitted to speak or write in favor of their party, yet they can not take part in caucuses or conventions, or be compelled to contribute to campaign funds. What is more important, in view of the organization of the congressional campaign committee, is the assertion that no regular levy will be allowed, and that no person will be allowed to solicit campaign subscriptions in government offices. The congressional committee evidently contemplates such solicitations.

The license of a saloon-keeper in a small own in Michigan is $500, and there is a dearth of saloon-keepers there. The clown took my fancy. I said that if ever I grew up to be a man, I would become a clown. No hardship ever kept me from that purpose. When I came to this country I joined my first circus. It burst up in three days. But that didn't discourage me. I kept on and finally became a clown. At last ny wife begged me to leave the show business. I was then playing at Chatham Four Corners. I took her to the circus to ce me. When we got home, I asked her now she liked it. Said she, 'Oh, you lookod so ridiculous!' My ardor all oozed out of my fingers. Said I, But didn't I play well?' She replied, 'I felt so ashamed then I saw you in the ring that I would have given anything to be home.' That lecided me. I was then playing with Sullivan's Hibernian Bards.' Reduced to its simplest principles, all there is of a cannon is the means for carrying an explosive machine to a required destination. When defenses were constructed of stone, then battering and breaking results were desired, and these could only be obtained by hurling solid masses of iron at high velocities. In precisely the same way it is costing entirely too much to get a two-hundred pound shell from the producer to the consumer; or if not from producer to the consumer, then, at least from where it is consumed. The transportation of shell between belligerent traders is very like what it would be to charter a special train of Pullman palace cars to send a sack of wheat from the Carolog site. a special train of Pullman palace cars to send a sack of wheat from the Garden city to the scaboard. The wheat is worth no more when it reaches its destination than if it had come all the way in a small cart. So of a shell. Put it where it is wanted and if it be a good article the manner of its coming will play no part. It will blow up as many men, and make as many widows and orphans if hauled in by a panner in a dirty carnet sack as if some from widows and orphans it hauled in by a pauper in a dirty carpet sack, as if sent from a piece of three concentrio tubes, and which is wrought to the nicety of a thousandth dimension of a hair, and sighted and prepared by all the genius, skill and nobility in the world.

The intelligent animal did not attempt to throw his line into the water. He tried to move Jim by low, pleading cries. It was curious to note what tender tones he seemed to mounted, so that, by employment of in-tricate hydraulic machinery, they can be raised to be fired, and lowered into a place of safety while being loaded. In other his ewn line, Old Soup went up to him, and with his trunk tried to turn his head cases; as is now being done at Woolwich, an "overbank" platform or carriage is constructed whereby a gun, after being loaded, slides down an inclined plane, and there can be loaded in safety.

All these things, these numberless and expensive attachments form a part of the expense of transportation. They are ruinous as a matter of outlay, and wanting in commensurate results of offense. It is a consideration of these facts which has induced a pause—a probable conclusion—in the construction of more monstrous guns than the 100-ton productions of Armstrong, and a rejection of the plans submitted by Colonel Fraser for a 200-ton submitted by Colonel Fraser for a 200-ton piece. I am of the opinion that the signs of the times indicate an almost entire abandonment of the present expensive and cumbrous system of colossal guns and thick plates; and the adoption of another system in which more destructive effects will be accomplished at a limited cost. Now we have maximum cost with minimum results. To reverse this is being at-tempted, and there is a hope that while minimizing the expense, maximum results in human butchery will be obtained.

PRACTICAL EFFORTS.

I hope, in a short time, to be able to lay before the readers of the Times full details of what changes, to accomplish the improvements referred to, are being made by the English government. At present I may say that conspicuous efforts are occurring with reference to torpedoes and rockets. By the use of the former, it is expected to render valueless the plating of vessels; and with the latter, to most materially reduce the efficiency of earth-works. The rockets will be charged with some nitro-glycerine modification. They offer the advantage of cheap transportation. They require none of the ponderous complicated and expensive machinery in cluded in the present system of throwing shells. It is believed that requisite charges of the most destructive material can be thrown into an enemy's works at a tithe of the present cost, and effects secured incomparably more efficient than the present system or method.

A Strong Contrast.

To the Editor of The Indianapolis News: The republican party has nominated for alderman in the 4th district a saloon keeper. Two of the delegates from the 20th ward who voted boldly for this saloon keeper are members of the Methodist church. They claim to be and are so re-garded as christian men. When such men sink their manhood, their religion for party, it is certainly a dark picture in the future for moral reforms. It is not necessary to be a temperance man to say that whisky saloons are a great evil afflicting society, and the tendencies of all good men should not be toward perpetnating and increasing it. The men who nominated this saloon keeper say by their votes that they are willing, for the sake of party, to perpetuate the evil. They are willing to contribute their aid to annually filling the graves of 60,000 drunkards. They are willing, for the sake of party, to place the cup to the lips of my boy—your boy—their own boys!

Temperance people wonder why, after years of their preaching against intemperance, their own boys sometimes turn out drunkards. Search your political record and count your votes given to the whisky interest. I make no temperance pretensions, wear no blue or red ribbons, belong to no temperance society, and make no hobby of the temperance cause. But it is my duty and the duty of every good citizen to us my utmost endeavors to prevent this city falling under the control of the liquor sellers. The opposing candidate in the democratic ranks of the 4th district is Wm. F. Piel, a man of unquestioned in tegrity, a business man, a working man. He is proprietor of the starch mill, in the southwest part of the city. He gives employment to a large number of men; he is an enterprising and useful citizen; the nomination of alderman came to him unsolicited; he will be an honor to the Fourth district, and I hope to see all good men, who are in favor of good government and low taxes, give him their support. I am, and so sign myself, A. REPUBLICAN.

CLEAR thought and vigorous action depend upon that perfect condition of system resulting from pure blood. When systems provocative of dullness and inactivity present themselves, then use at once Dr. Bull's Blood Mixture.

In reference to the time of residence re quired for a voter, the statute says twenty days, but the able supreme court has decided that this is of no force and a man can vote in a ward before his heels are cooled, provided he is willing to say he intends to live there for an indefinite period. This is probably another part of the crown law discovered by the able Buskirk.

Gave it to Our Neighbor.

A News reporter had just finished his daily grind yesterday, and was thinking strongly of dinner, when he felt a light touch upon his shoulder. Turning, he found at his elbow a youth. "Sir," said this person, "I have a curiosity, the sweet-est thing you ever saw. It deserves a magnificent notice. The most wonderful freak "The reporter was in an agony of suspense. He desired the freak to be produced forthwith. The youth beckoned to a man in the distance bending under the weight of years and a two-gallon jar, which he was clutching by its rim. "It is here," he was clutching by its rim. "It is here, said the curiosity-monger, rubbing his hands with gratification, "here." The patriarch's bared arm was then thrust beneath the fluid in the jar, emerging with a very young pig, one that had evidently died before its infancy began, and which looked like the alcoholized specimens which readingle tudents delight to seal un which medical students delight to seal up in glass cylinders to ponder on and gloat over. Snout, ears, trotters and caudal apppendages were all transposed in a higgiedy-piggled transposed in a higgiedy-piggled way that would carry consternation to the most robust stomach. There was no pride in the curl of this little pig's tail. It hung limp and supine. The reporter was sad, disquieted, disgruntled. It was all up with him. His dinner was indefinitely postponed. The Journal this morning has a very pleasing account of this cheerful porcine curiosity.

Sudden Death. The body of William Williams is at Russell & Lee's undertaking establishment awaiting investigation by the coroner. He came here a short time ago from Ottawa, Illinois, and for awhile boarded with Mr. Illinois, and for awhile boarded with Mr.
Briggs at the corner of Maryland and Tennessee streets, but for a week or more has been boarding with Dr. W. Hammond who was treating him for consumption, at No.
187 Indiana avenue. He was walking about yesterday, with no new or alarming symptoms of disease and died suddenly at symptoms of disease and died suddenly at 7 o'clock in the evening. There are suspicious circumstances in the case demanding an inquest. Deceased is about 35 years old, married and said to have money and property.

He Hones for Comfort and Sends a News Reporter to get it—What The News man

"Did it ever occur to any of you news-paper men that it would be a good way to determine upon the correctness of the de-cision in the Moriarty case, to ask the opinion of the lawyers?" Was the inquiry opinion of the lawyers?" Was the inquiry which Judge Buskirk shot at a News man this morning as he wandered into the criminal court ruom. The usually placid countenance of the great legal discoverer was marked by visible eruptions indicative of a perturbed spirit, and the ferocious manner in which he flouted a newspaper in the air was consulative to a newspaper. a newspaper in the air was cumulative testimony that his mind was ill at ease. There had been nothing done by the court, so the clerk had informed the item gatherer, and only a few persons were in the room. These had evidently been sympa-thizing with the much-abused judge, and they eagerly looked on to see the newspaper man squashed.

The N. m. was compelled to remark that he had not thought of that method of bolstering up or tearing down the court's de-cision. But if Juage Buskirk thought it would do him any good, he (the N. m.) would interview some of the lawyers about town and get an expression of opinion. "Go to republican lawyers all," said the judge; "take no democratic ones. You'll not find a respectable attorney in town who will put the case against me any stronger than this: "That the question is a new one, and I am not willing to give an opinion without examining the case most the savelle."

Land and the case more thoroughly."

Judge Buskirk was evidently very mad, and after giving these directions to the reporter, continued something after the following strain: "The newspapers seem to think they never can be wrong, its always the court. Moriarty might as well have ways the court. Moriarty might as well have been indicted for rape as forgery, upon the facts in the case as proved by the evidence; ("and that's what you were try-ing him for," interjected one of the sym-pathizers). "Yes, and that's what I was trying him for, and all that I was trying him for. Talk shout me heins infrased trying him for, and all that I was trying him for. Talk about me being influenced by political considerations in favor of Moriarity! Why, it's simply d—d infamy," throwing his chair from him and pacing the floor with agitated strides." "The whole pack of em down there, Sproule and the whole lot, are my most active political enemies. Why, Moriarty himself if a delegate to the convention to-day, would vote for Jim Cropsey's nomination against me. I've no more interest, personal, social or political in Billy Moriarty than I have in the devil."

When he began lugging this uncivil person into the conversation, the reporter thought it was time for him to go. Within a square and a half of the court house he talked with six lawyers of good standing, three among the foremost at the bar in this city, and without exception they said the decision was bad. One of them said he wasn't surprised at it, for he had heard Samuel H. Buskirk, brother of the judge, discuss the main point several times before it was announced. Samuel H. was Moriarty's attorney. The reporter did not find a single lawyer who supported the court, although one said there was a good defense although one said there was a good decease to the indictment, but it was not the one adopted by the attorneys of the de-fendant. A young and rising lawyer about the court house said, speaking of Buskirk's statement that Moriarty might as well have been indicted for rape as for-gery, that he was guilty of a rape on the treasury, and that either charge would stick in any respectable court.

Later this afternoon the reporter saw one lawyer who said that it was a very close question to decide, and that prosccutor Heller was as much to blame as Judge Buskirk in the matter. He (Heller) had failed to prove it was Moriarty who signed the warrant and not Auditor Sproule himself. It is the general impression among the emocratic attaches about the court house that the decision was a political one, and that the decision was a pointed one, and while he was incubating it they were laughing in their sleeves, knowing which-ever way it affected Moriarty, Buskirk was beaten for the nomination for judge of the criminal court.
